The Internet's "viral" success has placed new demands on service providers. Video streaming services have been gaining increased popularity and are now viewed as viable alternatives to traditional cable TV services. This has created demand for access to these services by consumers and business alike. The current method of enabling this access is through the use of set-top boxes, which are large and bulky, have limited storage capacity and can be expensive. The set-top boxes currently available are difficult to install, and/or are not well suited for use with audio/video conferencing. Mgosoft PDF Stamp SDK is a software component intended to be used by developers, and it enables you to integrate PDF stamping functions into your applications. With the help of this development kit, you can build programs that have the ability to apply watermarks consisting of images, text or graphic lines, making it possible to personalize documents or prevent them from being stolen. Of course, the complexity of the created application depends on the type of project you have in mind, but Mgosoft PDF Stamp SDK enables you to integrate several useful customization options and supports multiple image formats. For instance, it is possible to customize the position and appearance of the watermarks, process only specific page ranges and insert various dynamic elements, such as the current date or time, page numbers, file names and so on. Don't Buy Emerging Market Stocks By Andy Rosen I've been to India, but I've never been to India as a complete dot on the map, surrounded by millions of people. So when I say emerging markets represent a new frontier, I'm not talking about a coastal resort in Florida. It's a whole new world. With this in mind, I'm taking the opportunity to dissect and describe it. The basic premise of the investment world is that if you're looking to maximize your return, hold the stock market. That's because the stock market is the one place where the investment decisions of individuals working in corporations (and working within businesses) can exert a significant influence on the prices of stocks. Thus, the one market where we can see trends emerge and be influenced by the efforts of thousands of people is the stock market. But emerging markets are different. They don't have the advantage of the U.S. market in that the people working in them can't collectively influence the price of stocks
