Spectromancer is a fantasy card game with an emphasis on “card” combat that features a three-player co-operative campaign as well as online play, the arena, and single player missions. The game is free to play on the PC, Mac, and mobile web. Spectromancer is centered on a newly designed hero class system where players become sorcerers, beastmasters, and demonologists. They are not characters, but they are special. These heroes have no ranged attacks. Their strengths lie in their spells. These spells summon, guard, alter, twist, and destroy their card creatures. Each spell the heroes learn has a unique effect. Each spell the hero casts has a unique cost or cost-benefit trade-off. And each spell the hero learns costs gold. This means that the sorcerers must earn their spells like a merchant buys a shop, the beastmasters have to forage for their spells like a hunter gathers food, and the demonologists have to charm their spells like a bard sings a ballad. In the game, the heroes advance in the campaign as they acquire the abilities to play more spells and to summon creatures of ever-greater power. They also find spells which cause their creatures to change forms. From this, new creature types, abilities, and modes of play arise, so that new challenges and new ways of play emerge as the game evolves. Within the game, there is the arena. This single player mode is a series of challenges set in a series of scenarios designed to test the player's ability to play spells and summon creatures to overcome game obstacles. These challenges place a set of rules on the arena. For example, if a creature has four health points and has two damage dice, then it will lose one health point every time it takes damage. The player must apply these rules in order to create a winning strategy. In addition, Spectromancer features both online and single player missions. The missions expand upon the campaign with a set of quests. These quests give the player in the solo mode special abilities, creatures, and spells as they progress through the game. A game world is also present in the game. There is a world that the player, as a hero, can explore, like a city-state in fantasy media. The character can be leveled and access different parts of the world. When the player builds their character, the game world is littered with individual objects that the player can either use or trade with the inhabitants for services, recipes, and quest-related quests

Audio Deadness: Core Changes What are they? As you can tell from the title of this article, we're going to be discussing some things that are going to be implemented in the core. With these changes come new features as well, so keep that in mind. Tank Form The aforementioned tank form will be changing. Currently, every now and then you would see the ability for an Armored Suit, Pre-Apocalyptic, or possibly Pre-Apocalyptic Ranger to evolve into a tank. This is currently not possible, as it would require a law change. We are wanting to change that and make a tank be something more permanent, like an Armored Suit or Pre-Apocalyptic, while still be able to continue evolving to change into other forms. Permanent Tank Forms The tank forms will change to something more permanent. We are changing the tank form of the Pre-Apocalyptic Ranger and pre-apocalyptic armor suit to a form that will last and not change. Also, Armored Suits and Pre-Apocalyptic Rangers will all be able to stay in tank form indefinitely. These changes are being made to keep these costumes in a game that will remain unchanged. New Cosmetic Items We're also going to be adding new cosmetic items that are all their own unique items, so you can wear them if you'd like to. These are not new costumes and can not be worn in-game. These cosmetic items will also not be blueprints, so you will have to make the items yourself. Skin Modules One of the changes being made is to completely redo how we store the customization we do have. Currently, we have these two options: Skin Modules We want to move away from the use of Skin Modules, which currently allow you to assign different colors to different areas of your outfit. The color you wear for the whole outfit will change, as well as the color of all armor pieces. For the Pre-Apocalyptic Ranger, they'd still have their Ranger helmet and Pre-Apocalyptic armor set, but it will be up to you if you want to wear a different color in their place, or keep it the same. The idea behind this change is to make sure that there are no official costumes with no color choices, and you can only change the color of your tank form and armor pieces. We feel that this would be a better way to ensure that everyone can find something to their
