Calculator helps to save your time by giving quick result for basic addition, subtraction, multiplication and division. Calculator also helps to understand the different programming languages by understanding the codes. Importance of calculator Calculator helps to save time by giving quick result for basic addition, subtraction, multiplication and division. Calculator also helps to understand the different programming languages by understanding the codes. Calculator uses the buttons to operate the calculator. The buttons are marked for this operation. For addition, use: "1+2". To subtract, use: "2-1". For multiplication, use: "5*3". For division, use: "5/2". Calculator can be used to check the equivalent of a fraction. For example: $\frac{6}{13} \approx 0.5$ $\frac{31}{25} \approx 1.24$ $\frac{16}{13} \approx 1.23$ Calculator can be used for addition, subtraction, multiplication and division. Arithmetic operators: + - = * / Example: If the result of the equation is a decimal, you can "round" the result to the "cents" place: $13-5 = 8$ 8 (rounded to 2 numbers) = 8 $18-19 = -1$ -1 (rounded to 1 number) = 0 $26-26 = 0$ 0 (rounded to 1 number) = 0 $28-7 = 21$ $21-4 = 17$ $33-28 = 5$ $39-39 = 0$ Arithmetic operators can have more than one operand.

The result is the sum of all the operands:

$\frac{16}{27} - \frac{18}{19} = \frac{1}{19}$ $\frac{1}{19} + \frac{1}{27} = \frac{1}{47}$ $\frac{2}{47} + \frac{5}{7} = \frac{5}{49}$

Then, the number that is the answer to a division is called the "Quotient" of the division: $\frac{1}{47} = 0.0235...$ $\frac{2}{49} = 0.048...$ $\frac{3}{5} = 0.6...$ Then, the number that is the answer to a division is called the "Quotient" of the division:
